5G

Internet is becoming an essential part of our life. Internet connects us to the world at our ease at home. Nowadays most of the day-to-day tasks can be accomplished using the internet. But as technology grows there is a need for high-speed data transfer which can be used for many different purposes. To fulfill this requirement, many steps are taken to improve the speed of the internet.

5G is the fifth-generation technology standard for broadband cellular networks. 5G is the next successor of the 4G. The primary requirement of 5G is to hold the increasing demand for devices that interests internet access. 5G is faster and more reliable than 4G. Hence it increases the price for its services.

Working:

5G is getting boast in popularity in recent times becomes of the speed and more stable connection. 5G uses higher frequencies around 30 GHz or more. The use of high frequency makes them support a huge capacity for fast data. 5G uses shorter wavelengths, which means antennas can be much smaller than existing antennas while still providing precise directional control. 5G can support over 1,000 more devices per meter than what's supported by 4G.

In 5G Wireless Technology there are 2 main components:

- Radio Access Network
- Core Network

Radio Access Network:

In Radio Access Network mainly contains 5G Small cells, Macro cells and the system that connect the mobile device to the Core Network. The 5G Small Cells are present in mass. Small Cell uses millimeter wave spectrum that cannot propagate to large distances. Macro Cells covers more ground. Macro Cells use antennas. Antennas can have multiple connection to send and receive huge sum of data.

Core Network:

Management of all the data and internet connection is done by Core Network. Core Network merges with the internet efficiently and one of the known feature is Network Slicing.

Advantages of 5G:

- Increased data transfer speed
- More effective and efficient
- Low Latency
- Increased bandwidth
- Improved capacity

Latest News About 5G:

- Orange to launch Europe's first 5G SA end-to-end cloud network, in Lannion, France, in July.
- Indosat Ooredoo launches its first 5G service in Solo, Central Java, Indonesia.
- In-flight broadband internet provider Gogo installs its first two 5G antennas, leading the way for prototype testing of system performance.
- Etisalat and Ericsson partner to launch 5G mmWave in the UAE.
- Rogers 5G reaches Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, making it available for 50% of the Canadian population.
- India's Reliance Jio switches on its 5G field trial network ahead of the full launch later this year.
- Omantel and Ericsson successfully test 5G mmWave in Oman.

- Telenor launches commercial 5G services in Bulgaria; currently available in more than 60 locations.
- UK's EE turns on 5G in 9 coastal towns and cities.
- Verizon's 5G Home Internet is set to expand to seven more cities.
